

A photograph of a modern, multi-story building with a light-colored facade. The building features several windows and a prominent balcony with a grey metal railing. The balcony is supported by three thick, square pillars made of stacked, natural stone. The sky is a clear, bright blue. In the foreground, there is a concrete walkway and some green plants.

Mosgiel

Stonecladd™
A New Zealand favourite

WALLING SOLUTIONS

A combination of light greys, greens and brown tones gives Mosgiel Stonecladd™ a very natural and appealing look. For those who require a neutral, traditional stone, Mosgiel is an ideal choice. Its mix of natural hues makes it a very versatile option that's equally at home in residential and commercial projects.

Mosgiel is available in a choice of two finish options: the contemporary flat-face Ashlar finish, or the more rustic rough-hewn Schist finish.

1 This Mosgiel Stonecladd wall brings privacy design flair to this apartment complex

2 Stonecladd Columns provide a rustic counterpoint to this contemporary commercial design
